I am writing a Perl script to evaluate a function of a function and find the local extremum of a function that is contained in another function. I have created 2 arrays, one to store the local extrema of each level of nested functions and the other to store the number of extrema each level. The first level nested function contains 8 values from a file that describe a function $f(x)$. The nested function takes these 8 values as arguments, performs a f678ea9f9e
